New Product Keeps Potato Sproutless

Problem of Storage Now Aided by New Methods

The sprouting, shriveling and sogginess of potatoes when kept at room temperatures now can be prevented with use of haragrout. The treated potatoes remain firm, practically farm-fresh, and not only cook but also taste better. The product is equally effective on certain other root crops such as beets, carrots, turnips and rutabagas.

The active ingredient is methyl ester of naphthaleneacetic acid. When applied to the potatoes as a dust, it vaporizes and literally "gets into their eyes," keeping them from sprouting. Feeding tests have shown that the chemical imparts no harmful effect. Tests have been conducted for the past five years at leading agricultural experiment stations.

By this treatment the potatoes may be kept at ordinary room temperatures without sprouting and without formation of reducing sugar. Ordinarily potatoes are held below 45 degrees and shrink 5 per cent in weight, developing reducing sugars which affect color and taste.

KNOW YOUR BREED
Percheron

The Percheron horse originated in La Perche, a province near Normandy, France, and was imported into this country in 1839. Readily gaining in popularity in America, it is still the most widely used draft breed in the country.

The Percheron is an unusually active horse, but never-the-less is an easy keeper. He is clean-legged, black or dapple-grey and of marked tractability and intelligence.

The spray boom is made of one-eighth inch pipe, connected to the tank by a length of rubber hose. An automobile gasoline filter removes particles of dirt which might clog the nozzles.

Hot-Weather Care of Poultry Is Essential

Hot weather always brings problems of poultry management, but good practices will solve most of them successfully. Feed your flocks freely to keep up high egg production and to keep pullets growing rapidly. Have plenty of fresh water available for them at all times. Provide plenty of shade. Make use of good pastures, where possible, to help keep feed costs down.

SPECIALISTS ADVISE EARLY MARKETING

Forecasting a possible glut in the fall livestock market, Agricultural Extension Service officials advise farmers to sell their grass-fed cattle early.

Nearly 75 per cent of Virginia's cattle are normally marketed in September to the middle of November, and some drop from the present prices is expected. In addition, many cattle that usually go to the winter feed lot may go to the butcher instead because of this year's short corn crop; and farmers here may expect competitive runs from other sections of the country, according to M. L. Dalton, assistant animal husbandman for the Extension Service.

Explaining the current high price level, Dalton cited national figures showing that only 88,289 cattle reached the public stock yards in June of this year, as compared to 98,050 at the same time last year. The movement of beef and pork from cold storage during June amounted to 460 million pounds; and the heavier than normal withdrawal of dressed meat left stocks 117 million pounds below normal. In addition, the short spring pig crops have again made beef the basic meat source for America.

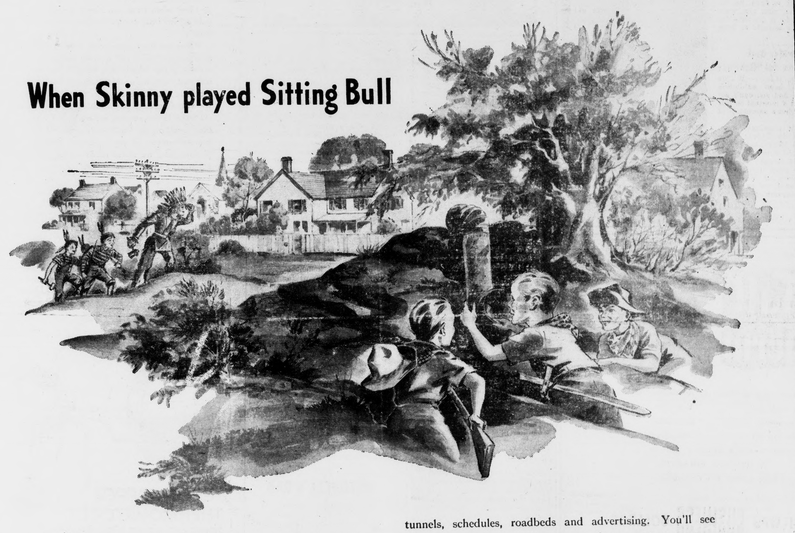
When Skinny played Sitting Bull



Remember when Skinny played Sitting Bull, and his band of "bloodthirsty braves" tried to take the backyard fort? Remember your periscope, made of an old stovepipe and a couple of mirrors? You could watch "Sitting Bull" and his "Sioux warriors". Skinny had big plans, but you didn't miss a trick. Through that periscope, you could see behind the scenes, so to speak.

On a busy railroad like the Norfolk and Western you have to look behind the scenes to see what it takes to move millions of passengers and millions of tons of freight.

You'll see a panorama of vast, diversified operations — signals and traffic controls . . . bridges and bookkeeping . . . cars and chemistry . . . food and physics . . . stations, tunnels, schedules, roadbeds and advertising. You'll see taxes and finance, huge inland and ocean terminals, safety, photography, fuel, map-making, mail-carrying, police work, engineering, car classification, mathematics, great shops, purchasing, powerful locomotives and accurate scales, and hundreds of other activities not revealed in a casual glance . . . but all necessary parts of the far-reaching job it takes to move trains in the best way known.

This is the backstage scene . . . where a coordinated, smoothly working organization of 22,000 busy workers, specialists in their fields, are teamed with the most modern equipment and methods to build the service, which the Norfolk and Western proudly calls Precision Transportation.
